ONLY MINUTE 20 SECOND VIRAL VIDEO

There have been countless viral videos that have captured the internet's attention within a short span of 20-30 seconds. Here are a few examples:

1. Charlie Bit My Finger (2007): This 28-second video of two brothers, Harry and Charlie, has been viewed over 880 million times. It's a classic example of a viral sensation.
2. David After Dentist (2009): In this 2-minute video, a 7-year-old boy named David talks about his experience after a dentist visit. However, his hilarious 20-second monologue about being "high" has become a meme.

3. Double Rainbow (2010): This 2-minute video shows a man experiencing a double rainbow and expressing his awe. The 20-second mark is particularly memorable, with the man exclaiming, "Double rainbow, all the way!"
4. Keyboard Cat (2007): This 24-second video of a cat "playing" a keyboard has been viewed over 70 million times. It's a classic example of a viral sensation.
5. Harlem Shake (2013): While the full 3-minute video of the Harlem Shake dance is popular, the 20-second clip of a group of people dancing to the song has been viewed millions of times.
6. Gangnam Style (2012): PSY's 4-minute music video may have been a viral sensation, but the 20-second clip of the song's catchy hook has been viewed millions of times.
7. David Beckham's Haircut (2003): This 12-second video of David Beckham getting his haircut has been viewed over 50 million times. It's a classic example of a viral sensation.
8. Evolution of Dance (2006): While the full 3-minute video of Judson Laipply's dance routine is popular, the 20-second clip of him dancing to various styles has been viewed millions of times.
9. The Floss (2016): The 20-second clip of the Floss dance, popularized by Russell Horning, has been viewed millions of times.
10. Laurel and Yanny (2018): This 20-second audio clip of a voice saying "Laurel" or "Yanny" has been viewed millions of times, with people debating which word they heard.

These videos have all captured the internet's attention within a short span of 20-30 seconds and have become memorable viral sensations.
